

Thou art hence my honored guest, my good Sire, for ye hath come to my abode, where thou canst forget the tumult of battle, whilst ye resteth thy head and satisfyeth thy hunger.
Honor my cook, who hath been dragged hither for thy sake from the fortress of Sir Jancelot, for with his head wilt he answer for the well-being of thy stomach.
Come then hither, put aside the worries of the tournaments, womenfolk and offspring, and place thy trust in my page, whilst raising thy goblet, as ye lay back in my court Jet us heighten therefore, each other's reputation, as is right and proper, and return thee hither once again for a goblet of wine.
